The question:

Translate the following paragraph, then select the most important legal terms and translate them

" Industrial property rights are the most important tools of competition in a market economy. They are subject to the law of supply and demand in order to achieve self-balancing, but the intervention of certain economic agents, through certain commercial practices that are contrary to fairness, leads to market imbalance. This has prompted the Algerian legislator to strengthen the legal system with an arsenal of laws that include administrative and judicial mechanisms that provide full protection through the repression of unfair competition, especially in a system where the state plays the role of regulator."
